

How Does the “Right Now” Posting Work?

Here’s how the “Right Now” system works and why it matters: The “Right Now” concept is the soul of Currently.

It’s what makes this platform different from traditional social media — where posts are curated, filtered, and often disconnected from real time. On Currently, when you post a Moment, it’s not about perfection — it’s about presence.

What is a “Right Now” Moment?

A “Right Now” moment is a snapshot of what you’re doing in the present moment — no throwbacks, no scheduled posts, no filters. It’s you, being you, in real-time.

You can capture your moment using:

- A live photo or video
- A current activity
- Your live location
- A timer for how long you’ll be doing it
- People you’re with
- A real-time caption

All of it reflects your life as it’s happening — not what happened yesterday or what will happen later.

The Role of the Timer

When you post a moment, you can add a duration — like 15 mins, 1 hour, 2 hours, etc.

This tells your followers:

- You’re doing this right now
- You’ll probably be here or doing this for the next X minutes

Example: “Working at the café for 1 hour” — friends nearby can see you’re active and maybe even join you.

After your timer ends, your moment expires from public visibility — keeping the platform live, relevant, and ever-changing.

Why We Don’t Allow Gallery Uploads Currently doesn’t support uploading from the gallery — because the platform is built around authenticity and real-time connection.

- No polished throwbacks
- No pre-shot, heavily edited content
- No waiting days to post

Only now, only real.

Who Sees My “Right Now” Moment?

Once posted, your moment is:

- Visible on your Profile Sent instantly to your Subscribers via notification
- Shown to your Followers Featured in Discover, depending on your moment’s
- quality and engagement

If you’re doing something interesting, nearby users and new connections might find you too!

The Power of Real-Time Social

Why “Right Now” matters:

- It encourages spontaneous meetups Builds
- authentic connections Keeps your feed
- fresh and in-the-moment

- Makes scrolling more meaningful — every moment is live, current, and relevant

No pressure to look perfect — just be present.
